Final Mile Delivery Solutions

MonarchFx offers our sellers management of what over time will become a full suite of delivery services that are competitive in price and performance with global leaders in eCommerce.

MonarchFx will provide same-day delivery in local markets as we roll out fulfillment centers close to these population centers. Next-day delivery will be offered within a much broader radius of our fulfillment centers. As your inventory is deployed across the country in the MonarchFx fulfillment network, sellers have the opportunity to deliver to large swaths of the U.S. population within one or two days at much more competitive costs than using today's outdated, hub-and-spoke delivery services.

Delivery services will be provided by:

- A national network of leading package courier firms tied together in a cohesive solution by the technology of MonarchFx.
- Leading regional package delivery carriers.
- U.S. Postal Service induction managed by the MonarchFx to significantly improve delivery speed over the service of the dominant national carriers.
- As MonarchFx grows we will integrate delivery service providers for large and heavy items as well as "white glove" service.

Sellers using MonarchFx fulfillment services are integrated with our delivery service providers via our core JDA order management platform. Sellers that start off only requiring MonarchFx delivery services can integrate through a range of protocols including: EDI, EDI-X12, AS2, XML, CSV, and FTP.

MonarchFx provides a platform that can track deliveries by tracking/order number, date, origin, or customer name. This tracking capability can be easily integrated into seller websites.
